The background of the entire image is a dense, repeating pattern of marbled paper. The pattern consists of numerous small, overlapping, teardrop or scale-like shapes that create a shimmering, textured effect. The colors are primarily black, white, and various shades of gray, giving it a high-contrast, monochromatic appearance.

Appeal.

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children appeals to the public for sympathy, co-operation, and support.

Children need protection from neglect and starvation, from severe beatings inflicted by drunken or angry parents and guardians. They are often overworked, underfed, and scantily clothed by those to whom they have been consigned. They are often bound out, given, let, or sold to acrobats, variety actors, singers, organ-grinders, dancers, jugglers, circus-riders, peddlers, beggars, showmen, and others, who employ them in ways that are injurious to health and dangerous to limb and life, and who force them by cruelty to adopt injurious and unlawful practices, and subject them to hardships and exposures which they are quite unable to endure.

We depend entirely upon donations and memberships, making no charge for expenses in investigating any case.

To show the need of such a Society, we give a few specimen cases by numbers on our record:—

1436. Man arrested for incestuous relations with his own daughter, a pretty girl of twelve years of age. Sentenced to five years in State prison. Girl adopted by a good family.

1938. A young girl enticed into the lodging room of a man who committed a felonious assault upon her. Three years in State prison.

1841. Sick girl, nine years old, beaten and abused by drunken father and mother. After child's removal to hospital by friends the parents were arrested on complaint of the Society for assault. Father, six months in house of correction. Mother, $50 and costs.

1593. Boy, seven. Father dead. Mother died from abuse by second husband. Boy left in charge of a miserable woman. Taken by Society. Step-father in prison, the only relative, consented. Child now well cared for.

1069. Girl, nine. Mother dead. Step-mother had severely whipped the girl. Had scars on head and face; had been placed on hot stove. Left naked in a cold room in winter. Difficult to obtain evidence. Child taught to conceal cruelty. To avoid publicity father gave the child to the society.

1090. An interesting and amiable girl, fifteen, living with an aunt, who had overworked her, and abused her by blows on the head, and by striking on neck with hot poker. Girl sought our protection. We obtained guardianship and custody after a long contest.

1676. Three children, two to five years of age, abandoned by father. Mother very intemperate. When found, the mother was lying drunk and insensible, and the children all intoxicated. Mother arrested. Children sent to the Marcella Street Home.

1656. Five children, from two to nine years of age, living in a wretched condition, taught to lie and steal by drunken parents. Children removed to a home.

1217. Two children, boy nine, girl seven, terribly beaten with a broomstick. Both children had their eyes blackened by blows, their bodies fearfully bruised, and patches of skin taken from their faces. Father and mother arrested. Fine and costs, $75. Well treated since.

1683. Girl, nine, taken to New York from wretched home in Boston by a blind pedler, who claimed he had the parents' consent. New York society rescued her and returned her to us. Father and mother intemperate. The girl, with other children of same family, placed in a home.

1637. Boy, fifteen. Father dead. Abandoned by his mother in the street when ten years of age. No home or known relatives. At his request, Society took guardianship papers, to enable him to enlist in the navy.

1536. Three children, sixteen months to six years of age. Mother intemperate and dissolute, wasting her husband's wages in riotous living. Children rescued and placed with a relative, father paying board. Mother leaves the State.

1446. Girl, fourteen, seeks our protection from intemperate parents, who abuse her shamefully. Send her to the "dump" to pick coal to be sold for liquor. For refusing to go for liquor is kept out of doors, improperly clad, for two hours in cold weather. Has been dragged by her hair. An elder sister had had same experience. Pending our action for guardianship, parents surrender all legal rights to a good family.

1311. Boy, two, badly deformed, a cripple, destitute. Removed to hospital. Surgical operation. Entire cure.

1316. Girl, sixteen. Long continued overwork by step-mother. Girl diseased and feeble. Guardianship and custody obtained. Placed in a happy home.

1349. Three children, three to thirteen, dirty, ragged, almost naked. No furniture, no food. Father intemperate and indifferent. Mother dead. Rescued under the "neglect law."

1400. Six children, from two to sixteen. Father intemperate. Mother dead. Boy, fourteen, in truant school. Girl, ten, with relative. Girl, sixteen, having charge, was sick and under hospital treatment. Three younger children placed in a home for adoption.

1409. Six children, four months to ten years. Father drunken and ugly, abused wife and children. Case investigated. Arrangements made to send wife and children to relatives in another State. Father repented, promised reform; mother accepted his promises. At last accounts doing well.

1375. Four children, five months to nine years. Father intemperate, sickly. Mother negligent and dissolute, absenting herself for weeks at a time, abandoning her nursing infant. Under "neglect law" children sent to Marcella Street Home and city nursery.

Some other cases are as follows:—

A boy was thrown down and jumped upon; a girl thrown down stairs and severely injured; in three cases, three or four children in each instance were left by their parents without food, and almost without clothing, in a cold barn, for three or four days together; a small boy beaten, sent out on the roof, and there tied to a chimney, on a winter's night; in one house, three split straps and five other straps, instruments of torture, were found. A small girl was standing barefooted, in midwinter, begging. When driven indoors by the cold, a woman beat her with a rattan, to force her out again to resume begging. These are but a sample of the almost incredible varieties of wrong inflicted by irresponsible power on helpless children.

Cases are constantly occurring where children of drunken parents are sadly neglected, infants left in charge of girls ten years of age, the mother being in prison, and the father almost constantly intoxicated.

We rescue these children from their miserable homes, and place them where they will be well cared for.

Children thus neglected are liable to become criminals, and the community to be burdened with their support. To rescue these boys and girls, and secure them good homes, or to place them under good influences, is not only a blessing to them, but aids in making them good citizens. Duty, self-interest, and humanity combine to encourage this movement.

Our purpose is to convert as well as convict; and, while we would not interfere with the just rights of parents and guardians, we shall endeavor to convince them, by the force of law or argument, that children have rights which must be respected, and that they can be governed without cruelty.

Home.

We have a temporary home at 94 Chestnut Street, which receives children found abandoned from any cause, for whom immediate shelter must be found, also those committed to our care or who are waiting the action of the courts.

FORM OF BEQUEST.

FOR PERSONAL PROPERTY.

I give and bequeath to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, incorporated in 1878, the sum of _____ dollars, to be applied to the uses of said corporation.

FOR REAL ESTATE.

I give and bequeath to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, incorporated in 1878, the following property; to wit (here insert description of the property), together with the appurtenances thereto belonging. To have and to hold the same unto said corporation, its successors and assigns forever.

Our Methods.

The question is often asked, "How do you work?" We can only answer briefly: In cases of cruelty by beating or inflicting pain, we prosecute for assault. In cases of wilful neglect, we take the children before a magistrate, under the law, Public Statutes, Chapter 48, or Statutes of 1882, Chapter 181, Section 3. (Pages 14, 16, of this Manual). In other cases, we apply to the probate court for guardianship and custody. In both the above cases, the children are taken from the neglectful or cruel parents, and transferred to some institution or home. In some instances, the parents will, upon proper representations, give up the children for better care by relatives, friends, or institutions. Our only object is to protect the children, but it is sometimes necessary to punish the parents to accomplish it, and so they are often committed to prison and the children provided for in their absence. Cruelty is not confined to actual physical abuse by blows, but there are many other forms that need to be prevented. This is only a general statement, and gives but a slight idea of the cases presented to us, which can only be properly appreciated by an examination of our records.

Agents Wanted.

The Society proposes to have an agent in every town in the State. Of course, these agents cannot be paid except for special services. And it is hoped that men may be found who are so interested in the protection of children from neglect and abuse as to be willing to occupy the position.

The agent should be kind but firm, courageous but not rash. It will be borne in mind that all cases of cruelty or ill-treatment do not occur where intemperance prevails, nor among the lower orders; and, in many cases, the wisest judgment is needed. The knowledge of the presence of an agent in a town prevents, as well as checks, both cruelty and neglect.

We hope our friends, in towns where there is no agent, will give this subject consideration, and help us to select suitable agents.

In the mean time, our office agents will be sent to any part of the State where cases need investigation.

Ladies' Committee on Homes.

It is the desire of the Society to have in each town, local committees of ladies on homes, to aid in finding families willing to receive children for a longer or shorter period.

Statutes of Massachusetts concerning Children.

Neglected Children.

[Pub. Stats., Chap. 48.]

[NOTE.—This act will be effectual only in those cities and towns which have adopted by-laws and provided a place to which neglected children may be sent. In other places action can be taken under Chap. 181, Sect. 3, Acts of 1882. See page 16 of this manual, which statute will ordinarily be used.]

SECT. 18. Each town may, and every town containing five thousand or more inhabitants shall, make all needful provisions and arrangements concerning children under sixteen years of age, who, by reason of the neglect, crime, drunkenness, or other vices of parents, or from orphanage, are suffered to be growing up without salutary parental control and education; or in circumstances exposing them to lead idle and dissolute lives; and may also make all such by-laws respecting such children as shall be deemed most conducive to their welfare and the good order of the city or town.

SECT. 19. The selectmen of towns containing five thousand or more inhabitants, and of other towns availing themselves of the provisions of sections 18 to 21 inclusive, shall severally appoint suitable persons to make complaints of violations of by-laws adopted under the preceding section; and the persons so appointed, and the officers and duly appointed agents of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, shall alone be authorized to make such complaints; and the persons so appointed shall alone be authorized to make complaints under the following section.

SECT. 20. A judge of the superior court, or of a police, district, or municipal court, or a trial justice, upon proof that any child under sixteen years of age, by reason of orphanage, or of the neglect, crime, drunkenness, or other vice of parents, is so growing up, may order such child to such institution of instruction, or other place assigned for the purpose, as may be provided under section 18 by the town in which such child resides, to be there kept, educated, and cared for, for a term not extending beyond the age of twenty-one years for boys, or eighteen years for girls.

SECT. 21. When the parents of a child committed under the preceding section have reformed, and are leading orderly and industrious lives, and are in a condition to exercise salutary parental control over such child, and to provide him with proper education and employment, or when, said parents being dead, any person offers to make such suitable provision for the care, nurture, and education of such child as will conduce to the public welfare, and will give security for the performance of the same satisfactory to the directors, trustees, overseers, or other board having charge of the institution to which such child is committed, they may discharge him to the parents or to such other person.

Neglected Children.

[Acts of 1882, Chap. 181.]

[NOTE. — It will be noticed by the following act, that the board of health, lunacy and charity must be notified when a neglected child is to be brought before a magistrate. When the settlement is admitted to be in any town in the State, the agents of the above board may not appear.

The law differs from the former "neglect law," in reducing the limit of age to fourteen. In towns which have adopted by-laws, (Chap. 48, Sect. 18, above) action can be taken under that statute.

For directions how to make complaints, see page 18.]

SECT. 3. Whenever it shall be made to appear to any court or magistrate that within his jurisdiction any child under fourteen years of age, by reason of orphanage, or of the neglect, crime, drunkenness or other vice of his parents, is growing up without education or salutary control, and in circumstances exposing him to lead an idle and dissolute life, or is dependent upon public charity, such court or magistrate shall, after notice to the state board of health, lunacy and charity, commit such child, if he has no known settlement in this Commonwealth, to the custody of said board, and if he has a known settlement then to the overseers of the poor of the city or town in which he has such settlement, except in the city of Boston, and if he has a settlement in said city, then to the directors of public institutions of said city, until he arrives at the age of twenty-one years, or for any less time; and the said board, overseers and directors are authorized to make all needful arrangements for the care and maintenance of children so committed in some state, municipal or town institution, or in some respectable family, and to discharge such children from their custody whenever the object of their commitment has been accomplished.

[Pub. Stats., Chap. 84.]

SECT. 2. Overseers of the poor may remove to the almshouse such children as are suffering destitution from extreme neglect of dissolute or intemperate parents or guardians, except as hereinafter provided. (Chap. 84, Sects. 3, 4, page 60.)

How to Proceed.

In making a complaint in the case of neglected children, the following suggestions will be useful to our agents or others:

1. Apply to a police or district court, or trial justice, for a warrant under Chapter 181, Section 3, Acts of 1882.

2. The magistrate will notify the State Board of Health, Lunacy and Charity when the case will be heard.

3. Arrest the child, and notify the parents, guardians, or custodians, if any.

4. Note the condition of the house as to cleanliness, furniture and food, beds and bedding, and the condition of the children as to clothing and cleanliness.

5. Take them to court as found, without change, that the magistrate may better judge of the neglect.

6. Do the children attend school?

7. Are the parents intemperate?

8. Are the children sent for liquor, or to beg?

9. What is the general character of the parents or guardians, for sobriety, industry, chastity and veracity?

10. If the children have a known settlement, and the State Board are so notified, they will probably not be represented at the trial.

11. If the magistrate decides to commit them, the arresting officer will carry out the order of the court.

12. Agents and others will confer a favor by sending names of parents or guardians, and names and ages of children to our office, with the result of the trial.

Boston's Ordinance for Neglected Children.

The following ordinance, adopted by the city council, enabled us to rescue neglected children under the law of 1866. The Statute of 1882, Chapter 181, avoids the necessity of this ordinance, except as to children between fourteen and sixteen.

CITY OF BOSTON.

An ordinance in relation to Neglected Children.

SECT. 1. Every child under sixteen years of age who, by reason of the neglect, crime, drunkenness, or other vices of parents, or from orphanage, is suffered to be growing up without salutary parental control and education, or in circumstances exposing such child to lead an idle and a dissolute life, may be ordered to such institution of instruction or other place as may by ordinance be assigned for the purpose, for a term not extending beyond the age of twenty-one years for males, or eighteen years for females.

SECT. 2. The Marcella Street Home is hereby assigned as a place to which children may be ordered upon complaints made under the above Section and Chapter 283 of the Acts of the year 1866 ; and the board of directors for public institutions shall have and exercise the same control over the children sent to said place, except the power to bind out as apprentices or servants, as they have and exercise over children sentenced and committed under the provisions of Chapter 182 of the Acts of the year 1825.

Abandoned and Abused Children Transferred to the Massachusetts Society P. C. C.

[Pub. Stats., Chap. 48.]

SECT. 22. The judge of the probate court of any county, when it appears that a minor under fourteen years of age resident therein, is without a guardian, and is entirely abandoned, or treated with gross and habitual cruelty, by the parent or other person having the care or custody of him, or is illegally deprived of liberty, may appoint as his guardian the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children for such period as seems fit to the judge ; and said society shall thereupon become entitled to the custody of such child, to the exclusion of any other person, but shall not be entitled to his property. Said judge may at any time, for good cause, revoke such appointment.

SECT. 23. The parents, surviving parent, or guardian of a child under fourteen years of age, if unable to support him, may by an agreement in writing, signed, and fixing the terms of the custody, place him in the charge of said society, which shall thereupon have custody of him, as provided in the preceding section.

SECT. 24. Upon the complaint of said Society that a child under five years of age has been abandoned and deserted in a street or public place, or in a vacant building, a judge of any court, within his jurisdiction, may give the custody of such child for a period not exceeding thirty days to said society; which shall thereupon give notice thereof, under the direction of said judge, by advertisement in some newspaper published in the county where such child is found; and such child, if claimed by its parents, parent, or guardian, may be returned to them by said judge.

SECT. 25. Nothing in the three preceding sections shall be construed to oblige said society to receive the custody of any child.

SECT. 26. In Hampden County the provisions of the four preceding sections shall in all respects be applicable to the Hampden County Children's Aid Association in like manner as to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Neglecting to Support Children.

[Acts of 1882, Chap. 270.]

SECT. 4. Whoever unreasonably neglects to provide for the support of his minor child shall be punished by fine not exceeding twenty dollars, or by imprisonment in the house of correction not exceeding six months.

Abandoned Infants.

[Acts of 1882, Chap. 270.]

SECT. 1. Whoever, being the parent of a child less than two years old, abandons it within or without any building in this Commonwealth, or, having made a contract or provision for the board or maintenance of such child, absconds or fails to perform any such contract or provision, and for a period of four weeks after such absconding or failure neither visits nor removes such child, nor during said period notifies the overseers of the poor of the city or town where such parent resides of his or her inability to support such child, shall be punished by imprisonment, if a man, in the house of correction, and if a woman, in the reformatory prison for women, not exceeding two years, or, in case death shall result from such abandonment, not exceeding five years; but this act shall not apply to cases in which the omission to visit, remove, or support such child, or to give such notice, arises from physical or mental disability.

SECT. 2. Every person who knowingly and with wrongful intent aids or abets the abandonment of any such child, as set forth in the preceding section, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisonment not exceeding two years in the house of correction.

Infant Boarding.

[Pub. Stats., Chap. 80.]

SECT. 60. Whoever engages in the business of taking nursing infants or infants under three years of age to board, or of entertaining or boarding more than two such infants in the same house at the same time, shall, within two days after the reception of every such infant beyond the first two, give written notice to the board of health of the city or town where such infant is so to be entertained or boarded, specifying the name and age of the child, and the name and place of residence of the party so undertaking its care; and such board may enter and inspect said house and premises while said business is carried on, and direct and enforce such sanitary measures respecting such children and premises as it may deem proper.

SECT. 61. Whoever violates any of the provisions of the preceding section, or refuses admission to such board for said purpose shall be punished by fine of not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars.

[Acts of 1882, Chap. 270.]

SECT. 3. Every person who receives for board a child under the age of one year, knowing or having reason to believe it to be illegitimate, shall forthwith notify the overseers of the poor of the city or town in which he resides of the fact of such reception, and, if requested by such overseers shall also so notify the State board of health, lunacy and charity. The parent or parents of such child shall, when called upon by said board or such overseers, give to such board or such overseers satisfactory security for the maintenance of such child. The parents of such children shall, when called upon, give true answers to the said State board, or any of its officers, as to the residence, parentage, and place of settlement of such children, so far as their knowledge extends. Whoever violates any of the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the house of correction not exceeding one year.

Assault and Battery.

A simple assault and assault and battery, are offences under the common law, and are not defined by statute.

Assault and battery are always classed together because they are acts closely connected.

There may be an assault without amounting to a battery, yet a battery must comprise an assault.

An assault is the unlawful laying of hands on another person, or an attempt to do a bodily hurt to another, or to deprive another of his liberty, or without justifiable cause to occasion a well founded apprehension of bodily peril.

A battery is the actual striking or ill-treating of, or applying force to, a person in a rude or angry manner.

The present ability and intention to do the act must be proved.

Threatening to do a hostile act, when near enough to accomplish it, is an assault; but no mere words can in any case amount to an assault.

Simple assault is one committed with no intention to do any other injury. Aggravated assault is one committed with the intention of committing some additional crime, as with intent to kill, rob, steal, rape, etc. (Chap. 202, Pub. Stats.)

A justifiable assault may be committed by a person in defence of himself or his property, or of the person of another.

Rape.

[Pub. Stats., Chap. 202.]

SECT. 27. Whoever ravishes and carnally knows a female of the age of ten years or more, by force and against her will, or unlawfully and carnally knows and abuses a female child under the age of ten years, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for life, or for any term of years.

SECT. 28. Whoever assaults a female with intent to commit a rape, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for life, or for any term of years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the jail not exceeding three years.

Guardianship.

[Pub. Stats., Chap. 139.]

[NOTE. — In applying for the guardianship of a minor, on account of the unfitness of the parents, add to the usual form the words, “and to have the custody of said minor.”

It is well to state in the petition the reason of the unfitness of the parent.

Insert the birthday of the child, if possible. The parent must have seven days personal notice, or three weeks by advertisement.]

SECT. 1. The probate court in each county may, when it appears to be necessary or convenient, appoint guardians to minors and others who are inhabitants of, or residents in, the county, or who may reside out of the Commonwealth and have estate within the county.

SECT. 2. If a minor is under the age of fourteen years, the probate court may nominate and appoint his guardian. If he is above that age, he may nominate his own guardian, who, if approved by the court, shall be appointed accordingly. If the person nominated is not approved by the court, or if the minor resides out of the Commonwealth, or after being cited neglects to nominate a suitable person, the court may nominate and appoint his guardian in the same manner as if he were under the age of fourteen years.

SECT. 3. The nomination of a guardian by a minor above the age of fourteen years may be made before a justice of the peace or before the city or town clerk, who shall certify the fact to the probate court.

SECT. 4. The guardian of a minor, unless sooner discharged according to law, shall continue in office until the minor arrives at the age of twenty-one years, and he shall have the custody and tuition of his ward and the care and management of all his estate, except that the father of the minor, if living, and in case of his death the mother, they being respectively competent to transact their own business, shall be entitled to the custody of the person of the minor and to the care of his education; but the probate court may order that the guardian shall have such custody, if, upon a hearing, and after such notice to the parents or surviving parent, as it may direct, it finds such parents or parent to be unfit to have such custody, or if it finds one of them unfit therefor, and the other files in such court his or her consent in writing to such order.

SECT. 5. A father, or, in case the father has died without exercising the power, a mother, may by his or her last will in writing, appoint guardians for his or her children, whether born at the time of making the will or afterwards, to continue during the minority of the child or for a less time. Such testamentary guardians shall have the same powers and perform the same duties, with regard to the person and estate of the ward, as guardians appointed by the probate court Sections 7 to 16 provide for guardianship of insane persons, spendthrifts and married women.

Sections 17 to 20 provide for guardianship of persons out of the State.

Section 22 requires a bond of guardians, except as provided in section 25 below.

SECT. 25. When the custody of a minor is given to a guardian, pursuant to section 4, for the reason that one or both of the parents of the minor are unfit to have such custody, such guardian may, in the discretion of the court, be allowed to give a bond without a surety; but the court may in such case, at any time when it deems that the protection of the ward's interests renders it necessary, require such guardian to give a bond with a surety or sureties.

Sections 29 to 43 define the general powers and duties of guardians.

SECT 41. The marriage of a female under guardianship, as a minor, shall discharge her guardian from all right to her custody and education, but not from his right to her property.

SECT 6. Upon the application of the mayor of a city, or the selectmen of a town, or of the overseers of the poor of a city or town, probate courts may, within their respective jurisdictions, pending proceedings before them for an order under section four, or for the removal of a guardian of a minor, appoint some suitable person to be temporary guardian of such minor during the pendency of such proceedings; and the person appointed to be such temporary guardian shall have the custody and control of such minor until such proceedings are terminated. The probate court having jurisdiction may at any time, with or without notice, terminate such temporary guardianship.

Adoption of Children.

[Pub. Stats., Chap. 148.]

SECTIONS 1 and 2 provide that an inhabitant of this State of twenty-one years of age, may petition the probate court of the county of his residence, for leave to adopt a child, younger than himself, not his own. If the petitioner have a husband or wife, both must join in the petition. The parents or survivor of them, or the parent having custody, if the parents live apart, or the guardian, unless they have deserted or neglected the child for two years, shall consent in writing. If there is no parent or guardian, the next of kin may give such consent. If there is no next of kin, the court may appoint some person to act as next friend. One cannot adopt his or her wife or husband, brother, sister, uncle, or aunt. A person not an inhabitant of the State may petition the probate court where the child resides. If the child is above fourteen years he must give written consent.

SECT. 3. The consent of the persons named in the preceding section, other than the child or her husband, if any, shall not be required if the person to be adopted is of adult age, nor shall the consent of any such person other than the child be required if such person is adjudged by the court hearing the petition to be hopelessly insane, or is imprisoned in the state prison or in a house of correction in this Commonwealth under sentence for a term of which more than three years remain unexpired at the date of the petition; or if he has wilfully deserted and neglected to provide proper care and maintenance for such child for two years next preceding the date of the petition; or if he has suffered such child to be supported for more than two years continuously, prior to the petition, by a charitable institution incorporated by law, or as a pauper by a city or town or by the Commonwealth; or if he has been convicted of being a common drunkard, and neglects to provide proper care and maintenance for such child; or if such person has been convicted of being a common night-walker, or a lewd, wanton, and lascivious person, and neglects to provide proper care and maintenance for such child. A giving up in writing of a child, for the purpose of adoption, to a charitable institution incorporated by law, shall operate as a consent to any adoption subsequently approved by such institution. Notice of the petition shall be given to the state board of health, lunacy and charity, in case the child is supported as a pauper by a city or town or by the Commonwealth.

SECTION 4 requires that the citations to appear at court must be served upon the parents or guardian seven days at least before the hearing, or be published three weeks in some newspaper approved by the court.

SECTION 7 defines rights of adopted children as to succession of property.

Agreement for Adoption.

To enable parties to get legal possession of children given to them by their parents, without resort to any legal proceedings for adoption, we publish the following form, which has been recognized as valid in several of the probate courts of the Commonwealth:—

“ For and in consideration of expenses incurred or to be incurred by in behalf of my child, may be properly provided for and educated, I hereby delegate to said my authority over said child; and I do, of my own free will, give up said child to said unreservedly for the purposes aforesaid, or such other disposal as may seem to best for its welfare (agreeing that I will neither seek to discover its home, attempt its removal therefrom, nor in any way molest the family in which it may be placed or other parties interested).

such accusation. The court or trial justice may issue a warrant against the person accused, returnable before the same or any other court or trial justice having jurisdiction thereof in the county. committee of such city or town, or is regularly attending a public or private day school known as a half-time school, also approved by them, or if such child has been otherwise furnished for a like period of time with the means of education, or has already acquired the branches of learning taught in the public schools, or if his physical or mental condition is such as to render such attendance inexpedient or impracticable, such penalty shall not be incurred.

In every city, said overseers shall place every pauper child in their charge, and over four years of age, in some respectable family in the state, or in some asylum therein, to be supported there by the city, according to the laws relating to the support of the poor, until they can be otherwise cared for. SECT. 4. No such child, who can be cared for as above directed, without inordinate expense, shall be retained in an almshouse, unless he is a state pauper, or idiotic, or otherwise so defective in body or mind as to make his retention in an almshouse desirable, or unless he is under the age of eight years, and his mother is an inmate thereof, and is a suitable person to aid in taking care of him.

the line or degree of father or grandfather, mother or grandmother, children or grandchildren, by consanguinity, living in this state and of sufficient ability, shall be bound to support such paupers, in proportion to their respective ability.

The form and conditions of such agreement shall be prescribed by the state board, and the agreement, with a descriptive list of the origin, name, age, and person of the infant, so far as known, and the name, residence, and recommendations of the person taking the child, shall be returned to the state board in such form as it may prescribe. All such children shall be subject to the visitation and control provided by law for children put out or apprenticed from state institutions; but nothing herein contained shall diminish the legal rights of parents, guardians, and next of kin. How to Preserve the Health of Children.

The Boston Board of Health have issued the annexed circular, and we think our manual a proper place for it; hoping thereby to prevent much unnecessary suffering which comes from want of knowledge on the part of parents and guardians.

RULES FOR THE MANAGEMENT OF INFANTS.

Cleanliness. — An infant should be bathed every morning in warm water. The head should be washed as well as the rest of the body. If it is feeble, or if the weather is unusually hot, it should also be bathed again, before being put to bed at night. After washing, the body should be wiped thoroughly dry. As the child grows older the temperature of the water should be gradually lowered, so that, by the time the baby is four months of age, water should be used to which only warm water enough has been added to take the chill off. Let the diapers be frequently changed, and have them always washed in boiling water before being used a second time. If possible, never have the diapers dried in the room occupied by the baby.

Fresh Air. — Give the child all the fresh air possible. Keep the windows of the room open day and night in hot weather, unless the heat of the outside atmosphere is greater than that within the room. Avoid as much as possible any overcrowding of the room occupied by the baby, especially at night. Have the baby taken out every day when the weather is fine. Do not keep the child in the same room in which cooking or washing is going on.

Clothing. — The clothing of a baby should be light, loose, and warm. Except during the summer months the arms and legs should be covered. A flannel swathe should be worn in the summer as well as in the winter. Have the night-dress thoroughly aired during the day, and the day-clothes aired during the night. Use only safety-pins. Do not keep the child's head heated by any covering, except when out-doors or when exposed to unusual cold. In summer never allow the child to be exposed to the direct rays of the sun.

Sleep. — Every baby requires considerable sleep. Never wake a sleeping child. It should never be allowed to sleep in the same bed with any other person. Regularity in reference to its hours of sleep is as necessary as for its times of feeding. At those hours it should be put in its bed, where it should be left to go to sleep, unaided by any rocking. A child very quickly acquires the habit of going to sleep on being put to bed. Wherever placed in the room, the head of the cradle should be towards the window, so that the eyes may be protected as much as possible from the light.

Diet. — As a rule, until a child has its eight centre teeth it should receive no food that does not consist entirely or mainly of milk. Breast-milk is better than cow's milk. Observe regular hours for feeding. When overheated or fatigued never nurse a child. Until the child is six weeks old feed it at intervals of between two and three hours during the day, and every three hours during night. After this gradually lengthen the intervals between the meals, so that, by the time the baby is four months old, it shall be fed every four hours during the day, and if necessary once during the night. Do not consider that every time a child cries it is necessarily hungry. In hot weather, or if the child is feverish, allow it to drink freely of cold water. If the mother has not breast-milk sufficient for the child let the child be fed twice a day with the bottle. A flat bottle, its open mouth covered with a black rubber nipple, is all that is required. Complicated nursing-bottles should never be used, owing to the difficulty which will be found in keeping them properly cleaned. At first equal parts of milk and warm water should be used, with the addition of half a teaspoonful of sugar, if the child will not take it without. The quantity of food thus prepared for a meal should not at first exceed a sixth of a pint. As the child grows older the amount of water added should be lessened, and the sugar should be altogether omitted. By the time the child is four months old it should have pure milk, which in very hot weather need not be warmed. Immediately after using the bottle, always scald it thoroughly. The rubber nipple should be kept always in cold water when not in use. In very hot weather a little soda should be added to the water with which the bottle is washed, and also to that in which the nipple is kept. The best milk is obtained by allowing the can to stand about an hour after receiving it, and then pouring off for use the upper two-thirds. In very hot weather the milk which has thus been poured off should be at once boiled. It is also well to add, during the extreme heat of the summer, especially if the child is at all troubled with the diarrhœa or vomiting, a teaspoonful of lime-water to each two teaspoonfuls of milk. If the child is to be brought up by hand, it should be fed with the bottle, as described above, and at the same times as if nursed. If pure milk cannot be obtained, condensed milk may be tried. It should always be kept in a cool place, and is best prepared by adding one teaspoonful of milk to six tablespoonfuls of boiling water. As the child grows, the strength of the mixture should be increased. All prepared varieties of so-called infants' food are to be avoided, unless especially ordered by a physician. There is no proper substitute for milk.

Weaning. — As soon as the centre teeth have come, the child should have in addition to its milk one or two other meals a day. These should consist only of bread, either fresh or stale, or crackers with the milk. (Too fresh bread should never be used.) Gradually the mother's milk should be withdrawn from the child, so that it should be completely weaned by the ninth month, unless that period should happen to fall in the midsummer. Milk should still be its main diet. After the child is ten months old, it may have one meal a day of simple broth (mutton or chicken), or beef tea with bread. When the child is a year old it may have daily a little meat, cooked rare, and cut up fine. The yolk of a fresh rare-boiled egg may also be given daily. Even at that age, however, milk should be freely given, and should form the main part of its diet.

General Advice. — Have the child properly vaccinated as early as possible. Never urge a child to walk. Nature is the best guide, and when the limbs are strong enough to bear the weight of the body, the child will try to walk itself. Never, under any circumstances, except by medical advice, give a child soothing-syrups, sleeping-drops, cordials, spirits, or any of the so-called carminatives. If a child is suddenly taken sick with vomiting and diarrhoea, send immediately for the doctor. Until he arrives give no medicine; but, if the child seems in pain, wring out flannels in hot water and place them over the belly. Keep the child's body, arms, and legs warm. Keep cool, and do not give the child the various things which will be suggested by the neighbors. To make lime-water, put half a pound of quick-lime into an earthen vessel, pour over it slowly a gallon of cold water, stir it well and allow it to stand twenty-four hours; then skim it and pour off the clear liquid into clean bottles, which should subsequently be well corked.

MANAGEMENT OF CHILDREN OVER TWO YEARS OF AGE.

Regularity as to the hours of eating and sleeping should be insisted upon for children after, as well as before, they are weaned. Children should be bathed frequently, and should be allowed plenty of fresh air and exercise. The sleeping apartment should always be well ventilated. Each child should have its own bed if possible. Plenty of good, substantial food should be given, and children should not be allowed to eat confectionery, cake, pies, or any similar articles. Unripe or over-ripe fruit should be forbidden. Tea and coffee should not be given to them. Exposure to sudden changes of heat and cold, to wet and dampness, or to the direct rays of the summer's sun without proper protection, should be avoided at all times. In the colder months of the year flannel should always be worn next to the skin, at least over the child's chest.
